

MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE
Chicago

September 24, 2012

Jamie Janosz
Assoc. Dean of Student Transitions
Assoc. Professor of Communications
Moody Bible Institute
820 N. La Salle Blvd – Chicago, IL 60610
[REDACTED]

(Phone number found in REFERENCES—request access)

To Whom it May Concern,

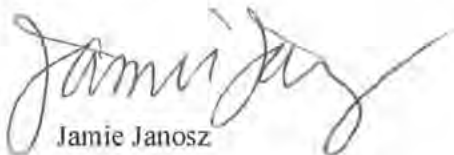

I have known Frank King throughout his college career at Moody Bible Institute. In my freshman Intro to Communications class, he distinguished himself as mature, dedicated, and hungry for opportunities. He has continued to impress me with his strong work ethic and enthusiasm in the four years since.

Frank is spiritually mature, honest, and compassionate. He is an excellent team player – and a committed husband, who is an evident friend and partner, to his wife Melissa. Although, like most of us, his life can be pressure-filled, Frank is always read with a smile or word of encouragement. I have been greatly encouraged by every interaction I have with him.

Frank has distinctive talents in the field of radio and communications. While he brought experience to us, he has grown in his audio and production skills during his time at Moody Bible Institute. He has taken full advantage of our professional broadcasting network – securing experience and jobs with Moody Radio. He is well respected by his classmates and colleagues.

I highly recommend Frank King to you, both as my student/advisee and as a colleague in ministry.

Sincerely,

Jamie Janosz

MOODY BIBLE INSTITUTE
EDUCATION • RADIO • PUBLISHING

November 2012

To Whom It Might Concern:

Frank King was a student in an upper level literature class I teach at Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, Illinois. The name of the class was "Images of Christ in the Novel," and in it we studied a variety of novels to see how the author had represented the archetypal image of the figure of Christ with a view to comparing that image to the biblical Christ of the Gospels.

In addition to reading eight novels, the class also covered poetry, essays and film. The student was also required to write a number of short papers as well as a major interpretation of an additional novel from a bibliography provided for the class. That interpretive analysis could be either an essay or an art work or a combination of both. Finally the student had to write a short piece on the representation of the image of Christ in stained glass windows in a Chicago church (they could choose from a list) known for its windows.

Frank was always a conscientious engaged student who read carefully, almost painstakingly, joined the discussions readily and showed great respect for both me as the professor and for the academic process. His papers were always thoughtful, and his final project was the combination of computer-generated art and writing.

Frank works hard, is very creative, and is interested in learning. He is attentive, respects authority but remains thoughtful and processes the material in substantial ways.

If you need more information, feel free to contact me at [REDACTED].

(Phone number found in REFERENCES—request access)

Sincerely,

Dr. Rosalie de Rosset

Professor of English, Literature, and Communications

March 21, 2013

Darryl Dale, Former Pastor
Friendship Baptist Church
Buford, GA

To Whom it May Concern,

I was Frank's pastor for over two years, from 1998-2000, though we have been out of regular contact since that time.

Back when Frank attended my church, I found him to be a highly talented and loyal young man. He was very enthusiastic in all our church activities and functions during those years. Active while I was his pastor, Frank was always willing to accept any duty assigned to him.

Finally, I would describe Frank as a king of counselor, and thinks outside the box. He was also very capable in a group setting as well in one on one settings.

Sincerely Yours,
Darryl Dale